Our Advisors:

Jody Bryson has led the remarkable transformation of SCTAC into South Carolina's largest and most successful business park, contributing more than $2 billion annually to the state's economy. Today, SCTAC has the unique distinction of being the Global Home of the Lockheed Martin F-16; the home of ITIC, South Carolina's World-Class Automotive Test Track; and home to more than 100 automotive, aerospace, and advanced manufacturing companies.

Sam Konduros serves as President & CEO of the Greenville City Economic Development Corporation (GCEDC), and spearheads business recruitment, investment, and innovation/entrepreneurship strategies for one of the fastest growing cities in the nation. Sam is a licensed attorney, certified economic developer, entrepreneur, and real estate professional.

Norbert Sporbeck: Norbert Sporbeck is a Certified Public Accountant in the U.S. and Germany. He exclusively serves international businesses in the U.S. and advises them on accounting, tax compliance, tax consulting and assurance matters during the startup and growth phase. He is lead auditor for mature companies and German-speaking contact for complex accounting and audit issues. He has 15 years of experience working with small, mid-size, and large private and public companies in Germany, India, and the United States.

Fernanda Ceva serves as the Executive Director of the European American Chamber of Commerce-Carolinas (EACC-Carolinas), a non-profit organization committed to promoting trade and investment between Europe and the United States. As a European lawyer licensed in Germany, Portugal, and Brazil, Fernanda brings a wealth of international expertise to her role. She also leads the "US Market Navigator," a tailored initiative designed to support European companies transitioning to the U.S. market.
